Dr Samantha Murton

Dr Samantha (Sam) Murton is the President of The Royal New Zealand College of General Practitioners, a working Wellington GP, and Senior Lecturer and Trainee Intern Co-Convenor at University of Otago, Wellington. Sam advocates for the profession at a national level, and she does this while maintaining practical experience that keeps her advice relevant and realistic.

In the 2021 Queen's Birthday Honours, Sam was appointed as a Member of the New Zealand Order of Merit (MNZM) for her services to medical education, especially general practice.

She is willing and equipped to represent the challenges that face general practitioners and their patients, bring GPs together nationally, and champions the role of the expert general practitioner who works in the broader primary care team.

Sam is the current Chair of Council of Medical Colleges.
